The Enforcers: Sir Stefan De Montford

Synopsis

William the Conqueror invaded England with seven thousand warriors, three counselors and three Enforcers...Stefan de Montford, Ian de Boone and Grey dâ™Anjou. These three knights superior would find life in England much different than life in Normandy, including the women they would meet, the enemies they would fight, the lands they would claim. Each would have to lay hold of their training; their abilities and gifts; their friendships and enemies; and their love of life to make their gifted castles and lands home for their posterity as well as their king. Stefan de Montford was the Enforcer of every wish, command and military tactic of Lord Hugh dâ™Avranches - one of The Counsel of Three who comprised the inner circle of advisers to William the Conqueror. Stefan stood the tallest of all in Hughâ™s army. No one possessed shoulders broader than Stefanâ™s. Considered breath-taking handsome, the ladies unashamedly pursued Stefan as though he were a Roman god set upon the earth for their pleasure. All except the Lady Elizabetha Emma Alexandria St. James, daughter of Lord John St. James, lord of Pevensey Castle. This English beauty, shrouded in political intrigue, would be forced to move from Pevensey, England to Castle Shotwick on the northern most English border, would be kidnapped, wounded, murdered, buried and - finally - succumb to her destiny. Whom would hold her destiny...would the fight t be worth the very breath in her lungs? Could Sir Stefan de Montford save her from the political arm of betrayal and murder? Would an English Lady be able to overcome the bitterness she harbors of Norman invaders? Would a Norman Baron be able to command English subjects to peace and harmony and prosperity without forfeiting his heart and his life? Only Sir Stefan de Montford's destiny will reveal all. Welcome to Pevensey, England. It is October 1066 and it is a time of war.
